

Candidates for Business Development Role based in Europe

GainingEdge, a global consultancy network for the business events industry is looking for potential candidates based in Europe for future sales and marketing representation roles.

Ideally candidates are home based, located in Western Europe and have an extensive background in business development/sales for medium to long haul business event destinations. Candidates must have a good network within either the association, corporate & incentive and/or trade exhibition market. English must be your primary language for communication however multiple languages are definitely a bonus. The candidate must be flexible with their hours, available to travel as required from time to time, and be able to work on either part time or fulltime set term contracts.

Candidates are also being sort for a sales support and research role, undertaking sales research, event coordination and sales support activities within the business events industry.

For further details contact:

GainingEdge

Email: info@gainedge.com

Website: www.gainedge.com